

Every bride has their own form of good luck incorporated on their wedding day, such as having something old, new, borrowed and blue. Some superstitions are outdated and even unknown to people today. Take a look at some of the oldest good luck superstitions and even incorporate them into your big day.... or not!

- According to Greek culture, sticking a sugar cube in your glove will sweeten your union.
- For good luck, Egyptian women pinched the bride on her wedding day - yikes!
- In Holland, a pine tree is planted outside the newlywed's home as a symbol of fertility and luck.
- Middle Eastern brides would paint henna on their hands and feet to protect themselves from evil spirits on their wedding day.

Best of luck!
